

OPponents OF SMITH SHOWING MARKED ACTION

Bitter Note Creeps Into Efforts
Of the Anti-Smith
People

VICTORY IS APPARENT

Expect Candidate Will Have Over 700 Votes On First Ballot

By George R. Holmes
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

HOUSTON, Tex., June 27.—The apparent ease with which Gov. Al Smith is coasting to victory in the Houston convention galvanized his opponents today into a flurry of desperate, eleventh hour activity.

For the first time since the convention opened, a note of the same bitterness which characterized the Madison Square Garden experience crept today into the efforts of the anti-Smith people to prevent the seemingly inevitable nomination of the New York governor.

In the face of the apparent certainty that Governor Smith will have in excess of 700 votes on the first ballot, Frank A. Hampton of North Carolina, representing Senator Simmons, issued an appeal of almost evangelical fervor today to the anti-Smith forces to stand fast.

"The anti-Smith and the anti-Tammany lines are holding firm," said Hampton, "and they embrace considerably more than one-third of the convention, notwithstanding the wild claims and the ballyhooing of Tammany."

"Let every Hull supporter, every Reed supporter, every George supporter, every Woolson supporter, every Donahay supporter and every supporter of the other able and well equipped Democratic candidates be not deceived."

"Here in the Democratic south, which keeps the Democratic party alive, let us harden our resolution as we face the enemy, and let us give him only this stern answer: 'You shall not pass. You shall not destroy our party as an instrumentality of clean and equal government by chaining it to the things Al Smith stands for.'"

There was more of it along the same line, but that represented the spirit and gist of it.

Party leaders did not take seriously today the claim that Smith can be stopped. They have counted noses too often in this convention to be deceived on that point. But they did note with uneasiness the evident fervor and bitterness of the statement. It was the first reminiscent breath of Madison Square Garden, which is the booby-man of this convention.

The party leaders chose, instead, to dwell upon the real opening of the convention and the keynote speech of Claude B. Bowers—a speech which brought 1,100 delegates to their feet time and again with vociferous applause as the main theme which Bowers thundered at them. That theme was "throw the rascals out."

The keynote didn't mention prohibition, candidates or any of the controversies that may possibly beset this gathering of Democrats. He hammered hard and he hammered exclusively on the contention that the Republican administrations of Harding and Coolidge have been corrupt and that the principal issue in the approaching campaign is "privilege and pillage." On that issue, the keynote contended, all Democrats can unite. His speech in its entirety was a plea for harmony.

FIRE BUG IS AT WORK HERE; STARTS BLAZE IN BUSINESS DISTRICT

Packing Material Set Afire in Rear of McCrory's New Store, Mill Street

EIGHTH ATTEMPT NOW

Colonial Theatre Set Afire On Five Different Occasions

Bristol undoubtedly has a fire bug running loose about town. Several attempts have been made recently to start conflagrations here. None of them have succeeded due to the fact that all have been discovered before the flames gained much of a headway.

On five different occasions attempts have been made to burn down the New Colonial Theater. A house on Penn street was set afire on two different occasions and early this morning a blaze was started right in the heart of the business district of the borough.

The blaze this morning was in the rear of the bakery shop of Harry Stetson, Mill street. Stetson's bakery adjoins the store which at present is occupied by the McCrory five and ten cent store.

McCrory's are preparing to move into their new location on the corner of Mill and Wood streets. New goods are being received and yesterday in unpacking the merchandise the packing material was left in the rear of the properties. It was this material which was set afire early today.

Fortunately the blaze was discovered in time and an alarm was sounded at 1:30. The consolidated firemen quickly responded and the alarm coming from the business district all of the five pieces of apparatus answered the call. The blaze was quickly extinguished.

The place where the fire was started is one of the worst places that a blaze could originate. There are a row of stores, all of frame construction and much inflammable material is close at hand. Much damage could have been done and a large loss ensue.

Ten Youths Reprimanded By Justice At Croydon

CROYDON, June 27.—Ten young men, a majority of them in their teens, were severely reprimanded and warned to keep the peace when they were given a hearing Monday evening before Justice James Laughlin at this place.

The hearing was the result of a raid staged about 11:45 Saturday night by Officer H. Lincoln Hughes, of the Bensalem township police, who acted as a result of a number of complaints made by business men at the corner of State Road and Cedar avenue, this place. Of late, according to business men, young men have been congregating in front of their places of business at night.

At these times, it is alleged, the young men used profane and abusive language and insulted women and girls as they entered the business places. It even became so, according to the business men, that women and girls were unable to cross the intersection without being insulted.

An appeal was made to Officer Hughes and he warned the young men some time ago, but apparently his warning was not taken seriously. Saturday night he arrived at the place and found the young men at the same place and placed them under arrest and arranged with Justice Laughlin for a hearing Monday evening. They were charged with disorderly conduct, using profane language on a highway and surety of the peace.

INDEPENDENTS WIN FINAL GAME, 1ST HALF

Defeat A. O. H. Nine by Score of 6 to 1, Last Night

WEAR NEW UNIFORMS

By T. M. Juno

Attired in their new garnet and gray suits, the Independents won the final game of the first half, defeating A. O. H. by the score of 6 to 1, last night. By their victory the Italian club nine finished in fourth place, while the Hibernians sank to the cellar position. The winners also stopped their losing streak which had reached four straight. The odd thing of the team was that it opened the season with a win and played all through the first half without gaining another triumph until this game last night.

Greco's playing in left field was the feature of the game but the pitching of Romeo must not be overlooked. This boy staged a fine comeback after being battered by the fast-going St. Ann's team in his initial start on the mound. He allowed but three stinky hits and fanned seven. He was generous, though and issued five passes. A. O. H. played good ball, but lacked the punch while their fielding was erratic.

Thompson opened the A. O. H. first by flying to Romeo. Dougherty lifted to Tranotti. Margerum whiffed.

The Independents collected three hits in their opening but failed to dent the plate. Piazza singled, and was caught off first. Holden to Lyden, Greco doubled, but was nipped trying to steal third. S. Lasprella singled, and went to second on a balk. Dougherty let Romeo's hit get away from him, but Lasprella went out at home. The "Hiboes" filled the bases to no avail in the second. Holden flied out. Lyden was safe on Lasprella's error. J. Brady walked. Lawler reached first on Mundo's miscue, filling the bags. McGinley struck out and Greco caught McCafferty's lift.

Holden made quick work of the Italian team in the second. Rubino singled. Genco fanned. Tranotti also fanned and J. Brady, completed a double play by throwing to Thompson getting Rubino who tried to steal.

The Hibernians scored one in the third. Thompson flied to short. Dougherty flied to Rubino. Margerum walked. Kervick was also passed. Lyden singled, scoring Margerum. Kervick was caught off second. Lawler to Dougherty.

Independent dented the plate three times in their third. Mondo received a free ticket. Lasprella's hit was good for three bases, scoring Mondo. Piazza's single counted Lasprella. Piazza went to second on the throw-in. McCafferty muffed Greco's fly and Piazza scored. S. Lasprella flied to center. Romeo and Rubino whiffed.

A double play stopped the Hiboes in the fourth. J. Brady was passed and was nipped trying to pilfer second. Lawler received a one base blow. McGinley flied to Greco whose throw to Tranotti doubled Lawler. Genco singled to begin the Independent fourth, but was out trying to steal second. Tranotti received a complimentary ticket. Mondo struck out. F. Lasprella singled. Piazza hit to Thompson and went out at first.

In the next inning, McCafferty whiffed, Thompson got four wide ones, Dougherty flied to Genco and Margerum breezed.

For the Independents, Greco singled and reached third when S. Lasprella banged a one base hit. Brady tried to catch Lasprella off first, but failed. Greco tried for home and went out. Romeo walked. Rubino lifted to Thompson. Genco ended the inning by fanning.

Kervick fanned to open the A. O. H. final, Lyden singled. J. Brady and Lawler struck out.

The Independents scored three times in their final. Tranotti and Mondo walked. Lasprella got his third straight hit, a single to right, scoring Tranotti. Piazza walked, filling the bases. Greco fanned. S. Lasprella singled, scoring Mondo and F. Lasprella. Piazza was caught at the plate (Continued on Page Four)

WILL REFURBISH BAPTIST CHURCH AND PARSONAGE

Paint to Be Applied to Interior
And Exterior of The Buildings

SOCIAL TIME IS ENJOYED

About 55 from Church Membership Attend Business Session

A decision to redecorate the interior and exterior of both the First Baptist Church and the parsonage was reached at a business meeting held at the edifice last evening, which was attended by a large representation of the membership of the church.

The session, held in the Sunday School room, attracted about 55 people. The rooms of the parsonage will be repapered and repainted, and paint applied to the exterior. In the church the interior walls will be redecorated, and paint placed upon the trim of the outside.

No definite style of redecoration for the church interior has yet been decided upon, nor color of paint for the two structures.

At the close of the business meeting, refreshments were served and a pleasant social time enjoyed. Those in charge of the repast served were: Mrs. John Weik, Jefferson avenue, president of the Social Circle; and Miss Rae Vandergrift, Bath street, president of the King's Daughters.

Chain Store Robbed On State Road, Croydon

CROYDON, June 27.—Believed to have been "an inside job," thieves last Friday night or early Saturday morning robbed the A. & P. store at the corner of State Road and Cedar avenue at this place.

Officer H. Lincoln Hughes, of the Bensalem township police, investigated the theft and expects to make several arrests in the near future. Two or three men are under suspicion and warrants have been issued for their arrest.

The thieves succeeded in taking $25 in cash from the cash register in the meat department and $60 worth of merchandise. Five hundred twenty-five dollars which the manager had secreted in another part of the store was overlooked, when the thieves made their rounds.

—Mrs. Haslan, who resides with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Chambers, of Market street, who recently fell down stairs, thereby incurring severe bruises three weeks ago, is able to be about her room. Mrs. Haslan is eighty-four years of age.

—Mr. and Mrs. James Archer, of Mill street, spent the week-end in Seaside, N. J.

—Mrs. Mary Ford, of 328 Jackson street, is paying a lengthy visit to relatives in New York.

FLAG PRESENTATION TO BE MADE TO THE BORO'

Ceremony To Take Place Here
On Morning of July Fourth

ARRANGING PROGRAM

A flag to be flown from the flag pole at the Municipal Building is to be presented to the Borough of Bristol on the morning of July 4th. The flag is to be a gift from a group of organizations of Bristol, and it will be formally presented at appropriate exercises held at the intersection of Pond and Mulberry streets on Independence Day morning.

Representatives of some of the organizations participating met last night and arranged a temporary program for the occasion. Efforts are being made today to procure a speaker of national prominence and it is the desire of the committee to make the occasion the first of a Safe and Sound July 4th celebration for Bristol.

Organizations represented at the meeting last night included the Bristol Boy Scouts, Bristol Lodge of Elks, Rotary Club, Exchange Club, Fathers' Association, American Legion, and American Legion Cadets.

The program as now arranged will include a short street parade, speaking and singing, and the raising of the flag to the top of the staff. The flag will measure 10 by 15 feet and be filled with small flags which will flutter to the ground when released from the large flag.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 27, 1928

THE STARTS THE THING

One would suppose that in these brash days it would be hard to find a young man or a young woman with an inferiority complex. It would appear, however, from a perusal of some of the magazines dealing with health and hygiene, that the inferiority complex is as prevalent and as destructive as ever, and that it is never too early to begin fighting it.

It may be that even the apparent readiness of youth to engage in undertakings that shock the elder generation is a symptom of an inferiority complex; a sign that a young man fears his inability to stand up with his fellows, and a desperate and unbalanced attempt on his part to redeem himself in his own eyes and in those of his harder companions. In short, the desperado may be the victim of an early inferiority complex. It is well known to criminologists that the criminal class does not stack up mentally with the class of law-abiding citizens. Can it not be that this fact is due to a mental twist brought on in early youth, the development of a feeling that one is not on a par with his fellows?

If that is true, parents cannot be too careful in their guidance of children. They cannot afford to make children feel that they are always wrong, always inferior. They cannot afford to force them along lines foreign to their natural tendencies, striving to turn the sensitive, artistic type of child into a butter-and-egg man, or a musician out of the boy whose interest is all in mechanics. The more one studies failures, misfits and criminals, the more one becomes assured that a wrong direction early in life was to blame.

PROMOTIONAL MATERIAL

A big New York department store employs an expert who is both a physician and psychiatrist to keep tabs on its employees. It wants to find out as early as possible why some persons on its payroll do not produce; why some get discouraged and resign; why some remain in a habitual state of mind which makes them difficult to work with and unpleasant for the public to do business with. These are important questions for the employer and for those who pay them.

Through all the years poets and philosophers have been telling in varying phrases that every man is the architect of his own destiny. That message was never so important as it is today under conditions of highly organized business relationships. A man with an axe in the woods or with a plow in the back field could be ill-tempered without much detriment to anybody but himself. But a worker in a department with several hundred or thousand others may be a veritable monkey wrench in the works.

The program of the psychiatrist mentioned above includes two phases: He studies the employee to discover misfits, and he keeps close watch for "promotional material." That is a good thought for the average man to keep in mind. He may be a misfit, or he may be promotional material. The difference can be wholly in his attitude.

A luxury is something that costs $7.63 to make and $20 to sell.

Lie: A conception seven parts imagination and three parts yellow streak.

If only the dear things wouldn't get the bloom of youth higher on one cheek than on the other.

CHAPTER I.
A heavy mist rolled up from the harbor, crept about the Battery and over Bowling Green, reaching out its grasping white fingers like hungry ghost-hands. It lingered over Broadway, bringing with it little barries of rain. Taxicabs shrieked and skidded noisily in the evening rush of theatre-goers. Up along the Drive the river loomed gray and colorless, save for the eddying reflections of light filtering down from the lofty Palisades, faintly blue and gloomy in the griminess of the fog. Down along Fifth Avenue the street lamps sent out wavering areas of ghastly yellow that repeated themselves in ever and ever widening circles, and were quickly swallowed up in the blackness.

Up through the Bowery came the long, hollow sounds of the steamboat whistles, whining dimly like baying dogs at night. At intervals the rattling, rumbling, grinding noise of the elevated overhead, winding like a long, red-and-green-eyed caterpillar drowned out the clatter of the great horse trucks, pounding on the cobblestones below. Motor sirens whirled as the vast bodies lurched dizzily round the

Personal Notes

—Mrs. Edna Singley, of Camden, N. J., was a recent guest at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hunter, of 236 Harrison street.

—William R. Albright, of North Radcliffe street, has resigned his position with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and has accepted one with the Pacific Steel Boiler Company, of Bristol.

—Florence Lefferts has returned to her home in Riverton, N. J., after paying a visit at the home of Mrs. Jackson, of Cedar street.

to their companions' arms, their high heels clicking on the hard cement, their short coats pulled tightly about them. Bobbed hair peeped out from beneath tight hat brims; fur scarves twisted about white necks; brilliant ear-rings jangled; diamonds, five dollars down, pay-as-you-please, glistened on stubby fingers.

Up a long flight of steps through a barred door. Then dancing feet, large and small, moved airily up and down the slippery floor of Kelly's Ringside Cafe. The cold mist shut out the room hung heavy with writhing smoke rings that blued the air in rivalry to the dark jazz band, yawling and shivering up to the cloudy ceiling. Waiters skidded across the floor, trays of glasses and food of their shoulders; clanked their burdens down noisily, sliding them across the pin-topped tables with little clinks.

All about the room against the walls were lined innumerable cubby-holes with a table to each. Another row of tables about the slightly raised dais that constituted the dance floor gave the Cafe its name—"Ringside." Hanging baskets of artificial flowers, slightly dusty and bedraggled, swung from gilded black iron pillars, as though playing a gruesome game of "In and Out the Window."

At the corner of the Bowery and Grand Street a policeman in a great rain-coat opened the yellow box on the iron post and rang in. On down through the Tenderloin district the shops along the street shouted their wares. Jewels, imitation and real, glittered alluringly. Small, murky lights loomed here and there in dingy windows. Black-shuttered doors sent forth a reeking odor of stale beer and cheap whiskey, intermingling with the aroma of the hot-dog stands and their great piles of chopped onions and peppers.

Tall warehouses with gaping windows crowded against the tenements wherein innumerable lives came into being, struggled, and died. Below, on the street, passers-by scurried along, intent on business, or loitered in dark alley-ways, protecting themselves against the rain. Long, slanting Oriental eyes peered from doorways. Guttural tongues fell thickly on the air, blending strangely with the softer accents of the Latin races. Beneath arc lamps on the corners slatternly men peeped from under low-pulled hat brims, their hands thrust deep in their pockets, their coat collars, pulled high about their necks to shut out the dank coldness.

The tinkle of a coin in the slot of a battered, automatic piano sent discordant notes to mingle with the passing sounds. A click of billiard balls on a pool table. "Come Unto Me All Ye Who Are Heavy Laden and I Will Give You Rest!" The Mission with its star of electric lights shouted its welcome. A clatter of brass checks, and the spinning wheel of a gambling machine paid its toll. Wow-w-w! The shrieking siren of an ambulance cut the clamor of sound. Police whistles shrilled. Traffic stopped. Silence. Then noise again.

Down along a dimly lighted street a bold-faced lady of the evening lunged forth from her window, appraising the night sights. Laughter; a maulin song; the banging of a door. The clang-clang of a fire engine, snorting through the street. A squeaky organ, aided by a whanging trombone and the grouped voices of the Salvation Army. The sickening flare of a gas jet against a tin pan. The loud voice of a fakir retelling his wares, gathered a crowd of loiterers. Slinking forms disappeared down short flights of steps and stopped before barred doors, pressing a button and waiting for the tiny, illuminated square that appeared as the eye-slides were drawn back.

Beneath the electric light signs that wavered dizzily, hurrying couples stopped to gaze on the attractions of cafes, shops, motion picture houses. Girls with brilliant, cupid-bow tips, stepped gingerly along over the wet pavements, clinging hooks and chains. Streamers of vari-colored crepe papers, twisted spiral-like, ran from a high, central light that had been dimmed with pink paper, over to the tops of the wall booths.

In the soft, semi-darkness, bodies writhed to the whine of the saxophone, bobbed heads against dark shoulders; white hands across black-coated backs. Swaying, pushing, shaking, these marionette-like creatures tapped out the time of the morning Black Bottom. Laughter; snatches of song; broken conversations. A heavy odor of cheap perfumes mingling with the smell of warm bodies, food and drink. Warm, white shoulders; sparkling stones; damp faces pressed close against soft-gleaming hair.

"All right, kid?" The tall, good-looking, very young man with the sleek, dark hair that curled slightly over the temples, grinned down at his partner.

"Uh huh!" The girl with the golden-blonde hair and the big, blue eyes, gazed up at him in answer and smiled happily. Her tiny feet, encased in satin slippers, frayed and soiled, tapped out the time, tracing the intricate steps set by the tall man with the dark hair. Her pale blue georgette dress with the tight bodice revealed the youthfulness of her delicate figure to advantage, and the full, circular skirt swung about her slender, shapely legs in gay abandon.

The two wove their way around the room, gazing into each other's eyes, forgetful of the crowd about them. The blonde, curly head nestled against the shoulder of the man's tuxedo coat, and now and then he bent his head to whisper something in the girl's ear. Suddenly she looked up with a little grimace of pain as a heavy heel came down on the toe of her slipper.

"You big brute! Whadda you mean?" The tall man pressed his partner more closely to him and turned his head to glare at the round gentleman who had so intruded on the girl's dancing.

"It's all right, Chuck!" The girl patted the tall man's arm, her wide eyes opening in fright.

"Aw, shut your trap!" the stout man muttered, casting a baleful glare at his assailant. "Sorry, miss," he apologized, as he swung his own partner past the girl and remarked her young loveliness.

"All right," the girl nodded. "Come on, Chuck!" She pulled the tall man into the dance again. "All right, if you say so, Rose, but he better not try that again." Chuck White, the beau of the Bowery, sent a backward glance full of menace toward the intruder and hunched his shoulder muscles as though to suggest that it was only for the sake of the girl that he did not press the argument.

The New Gas Refrigerator is displayed Here

See this marvel in action... Learn about our easy payment plan

THIS is the Electrolux Refrigerator, advertised in the Saturday Evening Post. Don't miss the opportunity of seeing how this wonderful new refrigerator works.

Absolutely silent... No moving parts

Electrolux makes ice cubes without mechanism. There are no moving parts at all. Therefore it is absolutely silent and nothing wears out. The refrigerating liquid needs no renewal. It is sealed in metal for good.

The freezing action—strange as it sounds—is caused by a tiny gas flame, small as a pilot flame. And it's safe. If the flame goes out for any reason, the gas is shut off automatically.

These features place this refrigerator far in advance of others. Yet, even though Electrolux is entirely different and has many unique advantages, it costs no more than others.

Prices on Electrolux range from $225 to $550 f. o. b. Evansville, Indiana.

Inexpensive to operate

The best thing about Electrolux is its economy of operation. You will be surprised when you find out how little it costs. And you will be even more surprised when you learn how easy it is to own one. Step into our display room. Whether you contemplate buying or not, it will be extremely interesting.

KEYSTONE NINE DEFEATS TRENTON Y. M. C. A., 9-2

In an interesting and well-played game, the Keystone A. A. defeated the Central Y. M. C. A., of Trenton, last evening.

The score is not a true indication of how fast the game was played. Many brilliant plays, executed by the Keystone infield, cut short the rallies of the Trenton Club. This work can be attributed to the bang-up ball played by Gene Dugan, Ed. Roe, Dan McDevitt, in the infield, and by Bill Fine in the outfield.

Ed. Custer pitched a fine game for Keystone, allowing Trenton but five hits. He had them eating out of his hand through the entire game. Delaney umpired a very nice game, quelling all disputes by his superior knowledge of the rules.

In the first inning Brown singled to center, Nelson striking out. Butch hit to deep right field; this hit looked like a sure home-run, but Bill Fine made a wonderful running catch of it, and turning quickly, doubled Brown at first base.

In the second inning, McDevitt and Deitrich singled and J. Fine doubled to center field, scoring two runs for Keystone. Walbuser singled and scored Fine. This ended the scoring in this session.

In the third inning Keystone scored two more runs on a single by Barrett, a walk, and J. Fine's single to center. In the first half of the third inning Trenton scored their first run on a single by Butch, a stolen base and an overthrow at third.

Trenton was blanked once again in the fourth. In their half Keystone made one run on Deitrich's homer into deep left field. Sam managed to hide this one in the tall grass.

Again in the fifth Keystone came through and scored two more on Custer's single, W. Fine's walk and a single by Roe.

In the sixth Trenton scored their second run on a walk, a passed ball and a hit by Jago. Keystone in their half made their last rally on a walk and two singles.

The game ended with the completion of the seventh inning.

Last night marked the first appearance of some new faces in the Keystone line-up. Gene Dugan played third and fielded his position very well.

Ed. Roe played his usual game at short-stop, featuring with several brilliant catches. Dan McDevitt came through with a run; a hit and a put-out and two assists and helped greatly in putting lots of life in the team. Great improvement in the Keystone infield was evidenced last night through the playing of these men. The team is gradually rounding into shape and with a few more games should be able to take its place among the first class ball clubs.

Tonight Keystone will play Leedom's at Sullivan's Field. Mulholland's claim that Keystone is in for it, and Keystone is equally confident that Leedom's are in for a trimming.

On Monday night at 6.30 Keystone will play the Trenton Collegians at Sullivan's. This promises to be a fast game as this club has included in its line-up several school-boy stars and college players.

An important practice will be held by Keystone on Saturday at 1.30 p. m. on Sullivan's field. All players are asked to report promptly.

TWO TEAMS TIE FOR LEAGUE LEADERSHIP

(By T. M. Juno)

Last night in A. O. H. Hall the regular meeting of the Bristol Twilight Baseball League was called. In the absence of President "Dave" Landreth, Vice-President John Boyle conducted the meeting. All the teams were represented.

The final standing of the first half was read by Francis G. Ellis, secretary, and approved by the directors. It was decided not to play the postponed or play-off games because of the shortage of time.

July 8th was the date set for the play-off between St. Ann's and Field Club to determine the winner of the first half.

The present method of selling tags to entitle a fan to a seat will be abolished starting tonight.

The next meeting will be called by President D. Landreth.

Jack: "Why is the figure '9' like a peacock?"
Jim: "I don't know. Why?"
Jack: "Because without a tail it is nothing."

"I heard that your father was sick," said the teacher. "Is he any better?"
"He had the stummick ache something awful," replied the little son, "but it don't ache half so loud as it did last night."

This much can be said in favor of being a candidate for office: It makes a fellow try to be agreeable, at least during the campaign.

Fond Mother: "I am going to make an artist of my little boy."
Friend: "Has he any special aptitude for art work?"
Mother: "Oh, yes. He can go three days without eating."

The hardware man had called on the widow every time he had a free evening, for over a year.

"Why don't you marry her?" asked a friend.

"I've often thought about it," he replied. "But where would I spend my evenings then?"

Judge: "Why do you wish the divorce?"
Fair Plaintiff: "Well, I'm thinking of getting married."

NEW YORK.—Blind, deaf and dumb from her earliest years, Helen Keller has just opened another avenue of communication with the world. It consists of the Great Dane pictured above, a gift to her from Robert Lutz, publisher, of Stuttgart, Germany.
"All my life I have been interested in animals," said Miss Keller on her arrival from abroad. "Since early childhood, life has fascinated me; I have visited nearly all of the important zoological parks and menageries, making the acquaintance of African buffalos, hippopotami, sea lions and even prairie wolves and coyotes.
"All these contacts have helped to make the world I live in vivid and vastly interesting."
